D.A.: Lyons man got teen addicted to crack, forced her into prostitution

By WHAM Monday, December 21st 2015

Lyons, N.Y. - A Lyons man was indicted on several charges related to allegations that he sexually assaulted a girl for five years.

Wayne County District Attorney Richard Healy said 32-year-old Jarvis Streeter sexually assaulted the young girl several times from the ages of 11-15.

The D.A. said Streeter gave the victim crack cocaine during summer 2015 when the victim was 15 years old, causing her to become addicted. Streeter would smoke with her, then arrange for her to have sex with older men in exchange for additional drugs.

Four other men will be arrested and charged with third-degree statutory rape of the victim.

Streeter was indicted on charges of predatory sexual assault against a child, compelling prostitution and sex trafficking.

Streeter is in jail in lieu of $50,000 bail. He faces up to 25 years to life in prison on the predatory sexual assault against a child charge and up to 25 years in prison on the prostitution and sex trafficking charges.
